

REGISTRATION OPEN

DEATH ONLINE RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM

2pm Wednesday April 9th - 6pm Thursday April 10th, 2014
Collingwood College, Durham University

Co-hosted by the Death Online Research Network and Durham University's Centre for Death and Life Studies
As digital media have become an integral part of our everyday life, so have death and our afterlife become inextricably interwoven with technology. Marking the formation of an international research network within the field, the first Death Online Research Symposium will focus on current research into the digital mediation of dying, death, mourning and personal legacy, in order to explore and discuss how online connectivity is changing how, when and where we engage with death.

Confirmed keynote speaker at the symposium will be Professor Tony Walter, Director of the Centre for Death and Society at the University of Bath. Invited speakers will include Professor Douglas Davies (Durham University) and Professor Steve Jones (University of Illinois at Chicago).

The full programme for this event is available here: <http://deathonlineresearch.net/wp-content/uploads/2014/03/DORT-prog-final.pdf>

You can register for this conference here: <https://www.dur.ac.uk/conference.booking/details/?id=306>

Registration costs £30 for both days, with additional costs for dinner and accommodation. Registration closes March 31st.

For more information (or to join the Death Online Research Network), visit <http://deathonlineresearch.net/> or email deathonline@itu.dk.

We hope to see you there!

Tim Hutchings
Durham University