Assistant Professor Philosophy of Religion

The appointee will teach and conduct research in the philosophy of religion and fulfill his/her share in the administration of department and faculty (ratio: 50% teaching, 40% research and 10% administration). The appointee will do systematic work in philosophy of religion, but will also have genuine historical awareness. The immediate context of the position is the department of Christianity and the History of Ideas, a multidisciplinary department with a strong focus on cultural heritage. The successful candidate should demonstrate his/her ability to contribute effectively to the department's ongoing research projects (<https://www.rug.nl/research/centre-for-religious-studies/christianity-philosophy-culture/>) and enhance the faculty's presence in the university-wide research network 'Sustainable Society' (<https://www.rug.nl/research/sustainable-society/>).

Associate Professor Cross-Cultural Psychology of Religion

The label Cross-Cultural Psychology of Religion is here understood as a broad term covering an interdisciplinary field that includes the Psychology of Religion proper, but also such disciplines as Cultural Psychology and Multicultural Psychology, Trans-Cultural Psychiatry, and Medical Anthropology. The position will be located within the Department of Comparative Study of Religion, which is characterized by its inter-disciplinary profile and academic exchange across disciplines in the study of religion. The position will involve 50% teaching, 40% research and 10% administration. The candidate will contribute to the teaching programme in psychology of religion on introductory and advanced levels. International staff members will teach in English. The candidate's research expertise should fit with the profile of the department. Furthermore, the Faculty of Theology and Religious Studies intends to establish a Centre for Religion, Health, and Well-Being. The candidate will play an important role in the planning and setting up of this centre.
